DIED.

On the 27th instant, HARRIET JENETT, in fant daughter of John A. and Eudora A. Calder, [Richmond papers copy.]

On the morning of the 23d instant, after a short illness, at the Vale of Benjamin, his residence in B. BEALL, esq., in the 35th year of his age. He had many estimable qualities, which endeared him to a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

20 I have seen Dr. Ryder's note, and am quite unwilling to afford him any relief from the un-pleasant dilemma, in which he has placed himself, by his recent unprovoked attack upon the principles of the living, and the memories of the h ed dead.

His manifest desire to produce an impression upon the public mind different from that made by convey the idea so generally gathered from them, and intimated in my note to Mr. Ashby-those who heard them will judge. The attempt to make a difference between an investigation challenged and one "incited," I regard as a quibble, too trifling to be used by one who has such "respect for the public," and such a "sincere love of truth." What the Rev. gentleman's skill may or may not be, as a pugilist or gladiator, when faced by an antagonist, he has afforded this community no opportunity of determining.

Whether odium is not upon the face of the language employed in regard to the gentlemen who to him Dr. Harrison's respectful note, any candid mind may determine by taking the words in their palpable import. I simply quote them. "I thought it passing strange that Virginia gentle men should not have left their cards, instead of a captious letter, and promise to call again with the Mehaffey. letter when I was well."

Utterly averse, as I am, to even the appearance of controversy, I nevertheless hope that if Dr. Ryder must continue his assaults upon his Protestant brethren, he will do it in a form and under circumstances, with either his pen or voice, that will give them an opportunity of a reply, which shall reach all who have heard his allegations.
